HIBBS' TRIP TO FARWELL.

How he made his way Through Washington Territory to B. C.

The Oregonian says that about the middle of May last, Hibbs, who gave the name of T. G. Wilson, appeared at the Little Dalles, W. T., and, representing himself as a cattle dealer about to enter into a contract with the Canadian Pacific Railroad company, he took passage by the steamboat Kootenai for the new city of Farwell, B. C. He gave it to be understood that he had made a large sum of money in the cattle business, making no secret of the fact that he had lived for some years at Lewiston. Owing to some delay in the departure of the steamboat Hibbs was compelled to wait several days in the Little Dalles, but he seemed to evince no anxiety about this, and had no apparent desire to get across "the line" into the haven for defaulting bank cashiers. While at Little Dalles some one recognized him and surprised to see him so far from home, said, "Hello, Hibbs, what brings you out here?" Hibbs looked at his questioner, and replied with the greatest nonchalance that his name was not Hibbs and said that he had not the pleasure of meeting him before. Throughout his stay at the Little Dalles Hibbs kept up his assumed character of a wealthy stockman to perfection, and no one had the remotest idea that he was that gentleman whom the police were so anxiously enquiring after. Perhaps one of the chief reasons accounting for the man's apparent security was the fact that the Little Dalles is two days' journey from any point of telegraphic communication, and is only a few miles from the boundary line. On the trip up the river Hibbs "chummed" in with several of the passengers, and displayed quite a prodigal liberality with his ill-gotten gains. He went so far as to volunteer a loan of a couple of thousand dollars to one gentleman, telling him that he should not require any security. At Farwell Hibbs was struck with the weakness that invariably overtakes defaulters when they embrace the "free air" across the line—he yearned to distinguish himself in the hotel business. He entered into a partnership with a young fellow to build a hotel; contracts were entered into, and soon a fine $2000 hotel was being built. Hibbs was going to Victoria, intending to purchase furniture for the new building, when the minions of the law overtook him, and checked his further development in the new calling of life. Almost immediately upon his arrival at Farwell, Hibbs was recognized by an old Lewistonian named Allen, and finding it was impossible to hide his identification, he admitted that he was traveling under the alias of Wilson, and begged Allen "not to give him away."

The Work of Villains Near Farwell.

The Portland Oregonian says that "a man named Van Buren Reynolds was robbed of $500 under rather extraordinary circumstances on the upper Columbia river a few days since. Reynolds took passage with a couple of men named Ryan and Smith from Farwell, intending to cross "the line" into American territory. On the third night out the party camped on the lower Arrow lake. On the morning of the 12th Reynolds woke up to find his companions standing over him, one holding a revolver to his head, while the other rifled his pockets. They took from him the whole of his money, some $500, and then decamped in the boat in which they had been traveling. Reynolds was left without food in a most desolate region, 100 miles from the home of any human being. He set to, however, built himself a raft, and started off, intending to make his way down the river by this precarious method of navigation. Luckily he was picked up by the steamer Kootenay a few hours after he had started on his perilous voyage. The two thieves got through to Spokane Falls, and the last heard of them was that they were making for Portland, with Reynolds in hot pursuit.

Invincible in the Contest for Wealth.

The San Francisco Chronicle of the 26th says: Baron Von Hubner, who has been in our city on two different occasions and who has made a study of the Chinese question, recently delivered an address before the Oriental Society of Vienna, in which he pictured the grave consequences that may ensue to Christian or European civilization from an unrestricted Chinese immigration. He pointed out that certain qualities possessed by the Chinese made them almost invincible in the contest for wealth and trade in the countries where they are permitted to settle, and he declared that experience has taught the European observer that his fellows must go to the wall if he attempts to cope with the sons of the Flowery Kingdom. We commend the Baron's remarks to the attention of Minister Denby, who seems to think that he is going to a country of greenies who are in need of his solicitude.

Salisbury's First Official Reception.

A London dispatch of the 26th says: The first official reception by Salisbury as Secretary of Foreign Affairs was held at the Foreign Office this afternoon, and was a gorgeous affair. It lasted three hours. Downing street was thronged with carriages emblazoned with the coats of arms representing every country in Europe, bringing diplomats whose jewelled uniforms, decorations and swords were only equaled in gorgeousness by the resplendent liveries of their flunkies. The Chinese Embassador, the Marquis Tseng, was clad in the silken robes of a mandarin of the first rank. Musurus Pasha, the Turkish Embassador, wore a plastron that was stuff with diamonds, and carried a cimeter in a sheath which was covered with jewels. The presence of the Russian Embassador, De Staal, was noted as an augury that Russia does not intend to demand an apology for Salisbury's fiery, anti-Russian speeches while out of office. United States Minister Phelps came in a plain carriage, and was dressed like an American gentleman in a black dress suit.

The Crops in the Interior.

The Rev. Mr. Horlock reports crops in Okanagan and Spallumcheen looking remarkably well. Farmers and ranchers are cheerful over the prospects. Considerable progress is made in improvements in different directions. Rev. Mr. Shelbrick, Spallumcheen, has got into his new house.

Avoid by all means the use of calomel for bilious complaints. Ayer's Cathartic Pills compounded entirely of vegetable ingredients, have been tested for forty years, and are acknowledged to be the best remedy ever devised for torpidity of the liver, costiveness, and all derangements of the digestive apparatus.

THE WIDE WORLD.

THIS DAY'S DESPATCHES

Gladstone Still the Leader of the Liberals.

LONDON, June 29.—At the meeting of the Midlothian Liberal Association today, the chairman read a letter from Gladstone expressing his deep and grateful sense of the fidelity of the Liberal majority of 1880, in dealing with difficulties almost unexampled. He refrains from criticising the Conservative Cabinet, feeling it to be his duty to support and assist them in doing right. He says he is confident that the presence of a Liberal majority in Parliament will be competent to exercise the necessary vigilance. He asks Midlothian to assist him in using his strongest and most sedulous efforts in the interests of the Liberal party. Gladstone says he did not think he should again ask to be returned to Parliament, but that events have transpired which have rendered it necessary that he should not imperil the unity and efficiency of the party.

This is tantamount to a declaration that he will remain the leader of the Liberals. The meeting was then addressed by Earl Rosebury, and a resolution expressing hearty confidence in Mr. Gladstone was afterwards adopted.

Gladstone's letter is the political feature of the day. The Liberals are now relieved of their anxiety over the question of his continued leadership of the party, and are jubilant over the decision.

Right Hon. William Henry Smith, Secretary of War in the Cabinet of the Marquis of Salisbury, has been re-elected to parliament for Westminster. The Liberals did not contest the seat.

Warlike Preparations Still Going On.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 30.—A dispatch from Teheran states that there are one thousand Persians at work constructing the trans-Caspian railway. Warlike preparations are still being continued by Russia. Rumors are in circulation in the bazaars at Teheran that war will probably occur after the trans-Caspian railway is completed to Merv. Russians are bridging the river Murghab, on the confines of Afghanistan. Eight hundred Russian infantry soldiers are at old Sarakhs. Persians are fortifying the Persian Sarakhs and building barracks there for troops. A foundry has been started at Herat for casting heavy guns.

A St. Petersburg dispatch states that a telegraph office has been opened at Merv.

Consuls Recognized—The Garfield Statute.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—The President has recognized C. Cesar as Consul of the German Empire for the State of Oregon at Portland; Jose Migare as Consul for the United States of Mexico at Boston, Mass., and Jose Patez as Vice Consul of Portugal at Savannah, Georgia.

The statue of the late President Garfield, presented by the State of Ohio to the National Statuary Hall, was unveiled to-day without ceremony in presence of Governor Hoadley and two or three members of the committee from Ohio. They expressed themselves as much pleased with the statue and will recommend its acceptance.

The Bantry Bay Sham Fight.

Special to THE TIMES.

DUBLIN, June 30.—A dispatch from Bantry dated 2 o'clock this morning states that the naval shamfight is in progress in Bantry Bay. Admirals Hoskins and Whyte are in command of the opposing squadrons. Admiral Whyte is holding Bear Island. Admiral Hoskins in person directed the movements of a detachment of the squadron which led the attack upon the enemy. Battle was begun last night. Sham cannonade is now proceeding.

A New Bank—The Sharon Case.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—James G. Fair, who lately sold out his interest in the Nevada Bank, is preparing to open a bank in this city in the Real Estate Association building, recently purchased by him.

The Supreme Court has rendered a decision that all proceedings in the celebrated Hill-Sharon divorce case for payment of counsel fees and alimony be stayed pending appeals. This is considered a decided victory for ex-Senator Sharon. The opinion was rendered by Justice Sharpstein, with Ross, Myrick, Thornton and McKinstry concurring. McKee dissented.

Increase of Thirty per cent in Cholera Cases.

Special to THE TIMES.

MADRID, June 30.—The total number of new cases of cholera reported yesterday from the infected districts in Spain is 1322, and the total number of deaths 602; being an increase of 30 per cent in new cases and six per cent in deaths over the total number officially reported yesterday.

Are they Jonahs On Board?

Special to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Among the passengers on the Gallic which is now four days overdue at Queenstown and which has been reported at sea with her shaft broken are Roscoe Conkling, ex-Attorney General Brewster and wife, and S. S. Cox and wife. It is thought the Gallic will not reach Queenstown for a week.

The New Italian Cabinet.

Special to THE TIMES.

ROME, June 30.—Sig. Depretes, Prime Minister, has formed a new Ministry by taking ad interim the foreign portfolio himself, vice Signor Mancini. Sig. Tajani is Minister of Justice. Otherwise the Cabinet is unchanged.

An Overdue Steamer.

Special to THE TIMES.

QUEENSTOWN, June 30.—The overdue steamer Gallia probably will arrive the latter part of this week as she is reported to-day making fair headway with another steamer attending her.

London Consols.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 30.—4 p. m.—Consols at 99⅝, for money 99 7-16 for account.

The Canadian Loan.

MONTREAL, June 29.—News was received here to-night from London that the Canadian four per cent loan of £4,000,000 opened to-day, was subscribed for three times over, and that it has been taken up at about 101¾.

Destructive Storms and Loss of Life.

Special to THE TIMES.

PARIS, June 30.—Terrible storms have prevailed recently in the provinces. The destruction of property by winds and floods has been enormous. Eight persons were killed by lightning.

The Sinking Hero.

Special to THE TIMES.

MOUNT MCGREGOR, June 30.—Dr. Douglas was asked this morning to review the form of that Gen Grant has passed upon the mountain. His life has been prolonged by the invigorating air here instead of the great heat of New York. The disease has progressed in a natural way, but as I have said before it is one of increasing debility. The General was likely to die in New York and had he remained there instead of coming here, he would in all human probability have expired before this. His present want is the natural result of the disease. He is every day becoming less strong, and though the step from day to day is scarcely perceptible, the aggregate of 14 days becomes very noticeable, from two weeks ago, when Gen. Grant left the city. If he was in New York to-day he could not be moved here, as his strength is not equal to such a journey. Now if you ask me when the end will probably be, I cannot tell, none can tell. He grows weaker and weaker until the last point of exhaustion will be reached. Referring to local conditions, Dr. Douglas said the mouth and throat were unusually clear, as a result of quiet and close attention during the past two days. The weakness of the patient is now evident in his lack of ability and desire to walk upon the piazza as he did ten days ago. There is a disposition on his part to economize his strength and there is lessened interest in his library work. The doctor this morning reports that the General had a fairly good night and gained considerable sleep. He is remaining in his room this morning.

The Would-be Assassin of O'Donovan Rossa Aquitted.

Special to THE TIMES.

NEW YORK, June 30.—The jury acquitted Mrs. Dudley on the ground of insanity. The jury were only in consultation about five minutes when they rendered their verdict. A motion was made to send Mrs. Dudley to the State lunatic asylum, which her counsel opposed. The latter asked that their client be permitted to be returned to her native country and be placed in an institution there. The court will listen to arguments on this motion on Thursday.

Believed to be Untrue.

Special to THE TIMES.

LONDON, June 30.—The St. James Gazette believes it to be untrue that the government proposes to retake and occupy Dongola and Egypt.

POLICE COURT.

(Before Edwin Johnson, Esq., S. M.)

Annie, a Nitinat, in possession of an intoxicant; remanded until Thursday.

John W. Nettleton, drunk. $5.

Harry Burns, vagrancy. Officers Shephard and Grant said that defendant was known to them for several months, and that he associated with thieves and did not work. Defendant said that he had always conducted himself properly and was able to prove that he had made money lawfully since coming to the city. Remanded until Thursday for evidence for the defence.

Tom We Man charged with the larceny of $34.25. Defendant arrived in Victoria a short time ago, and had been entrusted by another Chinaman with some articles of clothing to sell. Not having made a return of the proceeds of the sale at the time agreed upon action was brought.

Mr. Mills stated that the case had been settled between the interested parties out of court, and there being no prosecution the charge was dismissed. "Another instance" remarked a spectator, "in which Chinese merchants, or a court among themselves, interfere with justice."

W. Grant, on remand from 29th inst., selling ale without a license. Defendant is a manufacturer's agent, who has recently established himself in this city. He recently sold several barrels of ale to saloon keepers, and not having taken out a license, Mr. Bull entered a prosecution under the city licensing by-law. The magistrate inflicted a fine of $25 which was promptly paid.

The Volunteer Relief Fund.

The mayor of Winnipeg has forwarded to Mrs. A. W. Ross, of this city, a copy of the relief committee's report, from which it is learned that the total sum collected in Winnipeg, including this city's contribution, was $8,644.20, exclusive of $5000 from the local legislature, $4000 from the city council and $1500 from the Hudson Bay Co., a grand total of $19,144.20. The total disbursements to the 6th June were $3,538.06. The firms in Winnipeg from whom goods and supplies were purchased sold them at actual cost, for which the committee are grateful. The families of such as were killed, or their means of support withdrawn, are allowed on an average $4 per week. The bodies of those killed in the Fish Creek engagement are to be taken to Winnipeg for final interment, the government agreeing to furnish free transportation.

J. C. McLAGAN, Manager.

THE Manitoba members of the Dominion parliament have sent a memorial to the governor general to be forwarded to the Queen praying that a grant of two thousand pounds be made to the widow of the late COL. KENNEDY, of Winnipeg.

FOR some time past there has been a very general feeling in Westminster in favor of MR. BURDETT COUTTS being invited to stand for the constituency in the Conservative interest. This has now taken definite form in a requisition from the electors of the "Abbey Division," which has been numerously signed, especially by the working classes, during the past few days, and is about to be presented.

LADY JOHN MANNERS is doing useful work in an unobtrusive way. Her newly-published suggestions for the establishment of easily accessible reading and recreation rooms and free libraries are sensible and practical, and denote the possession of a kindly heart and a clear head. Only, Lady John, Guy Fawkes was not written by BULWER. The mere idea is enough to make the late Earl turn in his grave, and horribly to shock the exquisite sensibility of the Sardanapalus of Stevenage.

THE Russian authorities begin to see that if they drive the British government to extremities, it will mean war, and war waged with all the strength of the Empire. Hence the change in their language and policy. Concessions will have to be made on both sides; but there is now every probability that a settlement will be effected. At the best, however, it will be but a patch-up. The military party in Russia will never be satisfied till they have made an attempt on the Indian frontier; and it will be the duty of England and the Indian government to prepare for an event which may be near, and which is certain at no distant time.

LONDON World: There is a well-founded rumor pointing to the establishment of a halfpenny Radical morning paper in London. A large number of M. P.'s have been sounded, and given their adhesion; considerable funds are forthcoming, and the project has assumed a tolerably practical shape. The paper would be of handy size, printed in clear type, devoid of ponderous leaders, full of telegrams written in short paragraphs, and adopt the elements of popularity which have been lately introduced into some of the evening papers. Such a paper would, it is thought, have a great circulation, and help to educate the working classes in Radical doctrines. Signed articles would be largely employed.

LAW AND POLITICS.

The defeat of MR. JUSTICE COOLEY, who was recently a candidate for the Supreme bench of Michigan, has again brought into prominence, not to say disrepute, the elective system. JUDGE COOLEY is said, by an exchange, "as a constitutional lawyer, to take rank by the side of STORRY and MARSHALL; as a writer upon constitutional law he is superior to STORRY. His legal judgments surpass those of STORRY in brevity and diction; they equal those of MARSHALL in diction and massive reasoning, and greatly surpass them in learning, etc." Yet this eminent man and jurist, of world-wide celebrity was defeated "by a political combination, having at the head of their ticket a man unknown to the legal profession outside of Michigan."

The foregoing from the Canada Law Journal proves conclusively that our system of appointing judges for like positions, is very much preferable to that in vogue in the United States. Judge Cooley is generally acknowledged, to be one of the ablest and soundest lawyers in that great country and ought, in justice to his ability, to be occupying a seat on the Supreme Court Bench of the United States, instead of being put to one side, by a man very much his inferior, for a state judicial position. Gentlemen filling those onerous seats of trust, ought to be entirely removed from the influence, or caprice, of party lines.

WORTHY THEIR HONORS.

The raising to the peerage of Great Britain of SIR NATHAN ROTHSCHILD is the first instance of a Jew being called to the House of Lords. It is one of the crowning graceful acts of the many that MR. GLADSTONE during his wonderful career has performed. The innovation will be received with considerable grimacing by the venerable dukes, marquises and earls—many of whom are thorough fossils—who constitute the House of Lords. It is not many years since a Jew could not be a member of Parliament. Year after year the city of London lost one of its representatives in consequence of his being a Jew, yet so liberal were his constituents in their religious views that they elected him, and compelled public opinion to relax its views on the exclusion of the Jewish element from the Commons. SIR NATHAN is a very suitable man for the new station to which he has been called, and is a worthy son of that LIONEL NATHAN ROTHSCHILD who was the first Jew that ever sat in Parliament. He himself has been in Parliament for some years, and has enjoyed the singular felicity of being an Austrian Baron as well as a English Baronet. Another appointment equally creditable to the late prime minister is the elevation to the peerage of MR. JOHN MORLEY, who in his capacity as editor and manager of the Fortnightly Review has done as much as any other living man to mould and lead British opinion and advanced thought throughout Europe. He is comparatively young, being only 47 years of age. If he chooses he will make the House of Lords a very different place from the peaceful abode of slumber which it has become of late years. He is not only a deep thinker, but he is a shrewd politician, and he is quite likely to astonish his brother peers with speeches which will make their white hair stand on end. He is a man of much more grasp than LORD TENNYSON, though he may be unable to write fine verse. A few more such appointments as these would go far to reconcile the British people to the continued existence of the House of Lords. MR. GLADSTONE declined a peerage himself, partly because he despised the glitter of a coronet and partly because he realized that his party could not well do without him in the lower House. But he has done what in him lay to redeem the peerage from contempt.

GOVERNMENT ORGANS.

MR. AMOS ROWE has sold the Winnipeg Times to a syndicate of gentlemen in that city. MR. ACTON BURROWS has been installed as manager. This gentleman is deputy minister of agriculture for the province of Manitoba and a very efficient officer. It is reported the provincial government have secured a controlling interest in the company and that the Times will be run purely in its interest. The Times of late has been pursuing a very independent policy, said to be in consequence of the Dominion government refusing to recognize MR. ROWE's claim to a senatorship. The attacks of the Free Press and the Sun on the local government were so overwhelmingly strong that a defence of its shortcomings by the Times became to it incompatible with its policy of semi-independence. The price realized is said to be $25,000, not a very large sum when it is considered that the printing and stationary account of that province for last year was considerably in excess of $20,000, and that the Times has the printing contract, the "flesh pots" of Manitoba are not yet exhausted. How the avaricious maw of our contemporary, the Colonist, must water and wince when it is compelled to do the dirty work of attempting to cleanse the political linen of the James Bay quartette at an annual allowance of less than $1500, which, with other "casual advantages," swells the sum to about $2500, while its prototypes in the east revel in their many thousands. The nature of the service rendered may, however, be taken into consideration as the basis of remuneration. If so the Colonist has been well paid, for its attempted defence of many of the iniquitous acts of its James Bay patrons has been a most lamentable failure.

ROYAL PENSIONERS.

It is impossible to understand by what principle, says the London World, the opponents to these grants are guided, if, indeed, they are inspired by any principles whatever, except a wish for cheap notoriety and ignorant applause. They object that the QUEEN's income is too large, and that she saves a considerable sum every year, while on the other hand they protest against money being voted for the Royal Family. If the QUEEN spent every shilling of her income, and if no grants were requested for her children, how would the Royal Family live? It is forgotten that the QUEEN will have no fewer than five different families to provide for, as only the PRINCE OF WALES' children will receive provisions from Parliament, while the DUKE OF EDINBURGH's family will luckily be independent of national aid. There are the COXSAUGHTS, ALBANYS, LOUIS OF BATTENBERGS, and I may add the HENRY OF BATTENBERGS. It is clear that to provide in an adequate way for the future maintenance of all these branches will cut up a fortune of millions. The id capitandum twaddle of MR. REDMOND is beneath contempt; but if the case is to be argued on low so did grounds, the opponents of such votes will do well to remember that the cost to the public of our Royal family is a mere trifle as compared with the outlay in Russia, Germany, and Austria, in which countries, besides, the Royal Families (including the cadet branches) possess vast private fortunes. In the United States, moreover, the pensioners on the public revenues cost ten times as much as the whole of our Royal allowances put together.

THE PRODUCT OF THE DAIRY.

Last week mention was made of the fact that the condition of the home market in this province for the product of the dairy was such as to warrant the establishment of creameries and cheese factories, as the demand was now, and likely so to remain for some time, far in excess of the supply, and prices realized certain to be fair for the producer. The current prices in this city for choice table butter is from 30c. to 40c. per lb.; while cheese is retailed at 25c to 30c. Many assert that a less figure than this will not pay the producer and allow the retailer a fair margin for profit. This is the veriest nonsense, for in Ontario and Quebec where land is held high and stock equally as dear as it is here, we find that in many cities on the 18th inst., butter (fresh dairy) was quoted at 10 @ 12 cents; choice creamry at 15c. @ 18 cents per pound; cheese at 12¼ cents and eggs at 9 cents to 12½ cents per dozen. Few have any conception of the quantity of butter and cheese that is imported into this province. A glance at the manifests of the Wilmington, the Elder and the Empire in one of their recent trips to this port shows the following: On the 9th inst. the Wilmington brought in 226 lbs of cheese valued at $23, and 621 lbs of butter, valued at $1632. The Elder on the 11th had no cheese, but she had 8805 lbs butter, valued at $1986. The Empire, sailing from San Francisco on the same day, brought in 8025 lbs butter, valued at $1573, and 204 lbs of cheese, at $25. These figures were those quoted in San Francisco, to which has to be added freight and duty. Taking the foregoing as a fair average, it will be observed that the importations of butter alone at this port is about a ton per week. There is no reason whatever why this market should not be supplied by our own people and the money sent abroad circulated amongst ourselves. The matter is certainly worthy the attention of our farmers.

A Safeguard.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."

The same opinion is expressed by the well-known Dr. L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—

"I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S

Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is to-day saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first offered to the public.

There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has once been introduced where its use has ever been abandoned, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has, in numberless instances, cured obstinate cases of chronic Bronchitis, Laryngitis, and even acute Pneumonia, and has saved many patients in the earlier stages of Pulmonary Consumption. It is a medicine that only requires to be taken in small doses, is pleasant to the taste, and is needed in every house where there are children, as there is nothing so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for treatment of Croup and Whooping Cough.

These are all plain facts, which can be verified by anybody, and should be remembered by everybody.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

CAVALIER JONES.

[Concluded.]

"I ain't so well myself," Cavalier went on. "You won't mind goin' with your poor old father, will you, honey?"

"Why, why," and her tender arms were around his neck, "what makes you think I don't love you?"

"I know you do, Missy. The place ain't far from the city, and it's a nice little house where we're goin' to stay."

"Yes, father," said Clelia piteously. Mark did not come to see her that day; but on the following day he made his appearance.

"I am going away," she said, almost as soon as he entered.

"Where? when?" he stammered.

"Oh! very soon," said Clelia, "to-morrow." He looked down at the floor, and pondered. Presently he said, "And aren't you ever coming back again."

"I don't know."

"Ah!" said he, and pondered again.

This apparent acquiescence affected Clelia with a sense of powerless suffocation. He was taken by surprise. His mind had not leaped forward to such results. He had been thinking only of to-day, and now to-day was passing out of his reach.

"It isn't so very far away," she observed. "Only at Bayou Perette."

"Oh! is that all?" said Mark, in a relieved tone. "I thought I was going to lose you forever."

"Why, shall you miss me, now and then?"

"All the time," he answered, heavily. "But you said you are not going far away."

"Do you mean, would you ever come to see us?"

"Why, yes—yes, of course. And so you are going to-morrow? I wish I had known it."

"I don't see what good that would have done."

"Well, it wouldn't have done much good," assented Mark.

Outside the afternoon sky was flushed with wonderful floating clouds that shone upon the old cathedral and the low-roofed French market. Across the glorified river at Algiers, there was a great tangle of masts and spars against the clear background. There was a watery brightness in the air like a smile in the midst of tears.

The customary noises ebbed and flowed. A little tugboat gave a shrill, yelping whistle, and, at intervals, the bell of the cathedral uttered a deep sound like a sob. Clelia felt the tears burning under her eyelid as Mark rose to his feet.

"Won't you wait until father comes in?" she asked.

"I am obliged to go; I have an engagement."

"He'll be sorry," murmured Clelia.

"But I will see you again," Mark suggested.

"You are going on the Golden Gates, aren't you? Well, I'll be down in time to tell you good-bye."

For a moment her hand was inclosed in his, and then he left her.

A tear rolled down her cheek as he passed beyond her sight.

"But I'll see him to-morrow," she whispered with a sob.

* * * * * *

"I'd rather stay out on the guards, father," said Clelia; "it's cooler."

She was leaning on the railing, with her eyes fixed on the surging crowd. Bill was beside her.

"How long will it be before the boat starts now?"

"About ten minutes," he replied. "Look, Clelia—I won't see you for a long time, I reckon—"

"Is it sure to start in ten minutes?" she interrupted.

"I don't know," said he. "Good-bye! Bill was gone. The ten minutes had leaped past, and the boat began to throb and tremble.

Clelia pressed her hand to her heart. There was a sick, lost feeling there, though her trembling lips essayed a smile.

"Come in honey," said Cavalier. "The wind's blowin' too fresh."

"No. I like to see the—the people," said Clelia weakly, with her eyes fixed upon the lessening city.

It was not long before they reached Bayou Perette, and Cavalier pointed out their future dwelling to Clelia. It was a modest little brown house, not far from the steamboat landing.

There was the usual straggling group of houses and stores, and the inevitable green and white church standing in the midst of a sparse thicket of scrub oaks that reminded one of an old tooth-brush.

"Yonder it is, Missy," he said.

"That!" she replied, with a neutral inflection.

"You mustn't set your mind against it beforehand, you know. I've heard it's a right nice country around here. I reckon you'll be able to make out; won't you, Missy?"

"Oh—yes," she said.

It was not, indeed, as unattractive as it had seemed at first sight. The house was neat and well-kept, and the little garden was garnished with two willow trees and plenty of gay, old-fashioned flowers. Clelia went up to her room and closed the door.

She fell on her knees beside the bed. She did not pray, nor even shed tears; but only looked upward with a dumb protest in her eyes against the pain she suffered.

"It was because he could not come," she murmured. "Perhaps he will come to see me in a little while—in two weeks," she added, setting a limit to her misery.

"When he comes—" she thought, and her mind wandered off into plans of what she should say to him; how to conceal the tumult of her joy.

This phrase changed presently into, "if he comes," as the scale trembled between hope and fear; and in time this changed also, and became, "If he will only come."

At last the stress of her suffering wrung from her the cry, "Dear God, let him come."

Two weeks had passed, and the day had come for the arrival of the steamboat from New Orleans.

Clelia heard the whistle at the bend of the river. The huge volume of sound shot up into the air, as if it could never end; then broke into a strangled shriek that left the silence trembling.

She leaped to the window, and stood there shuddering.

She saw the slow descent of the staging; heard the oaths and shouts of the deckhands. Now—now—a vigorous figure sprang down the stairs, with a bright head uncovered, that made her heart quiver and fall again. It was not he.

The bustle and confusion were over; the little crowd dispersed. Throbbing and groaning, the boat resumed its journey.

Clelia's arms fell by her sides. She lifted a tearful face to the sky.

Gradually she sank down by the window-sill.

"I thought You would let him come," she murmured to the higher power that was managing her life.

Again she clasped her hands.

"Dear God, I will be good, she said, with a child-like anguish that would have touched any mortal; only don't let him stop loving me. I couldn't bear that. I will be good, indeed. But if I never see him again I shall be wicked. Don't You care at all if I am unhappy?"

"But why, why?" her sad thoughts fell off into irresolute conjecture. She conned over the miseeds of her white little life. It was like a child who, unconscious of fault, has been beaten and roughly thrust into a closet; and sobbing in the darkness, tries to understand how she has deserved her punishment.

"But I am not so wicked as some people—and you let them be happy," she whispered, half fearfully.

And if—if he should never come at all, how interminable appeared the years stretching before her. Her heartsick fancy shuddered away from the thought.

And the poor man in the room below followed by the intuition of love, each phase of her suffering.

"It was best—it was best to take her away before he'd time to make her more unhappy," he said, wringing his thin hands. "She'll soon forget him when she never sees him, nor hears his name. She's mine—she's all I've got."

As days increased between Clelia and Mark, a wasting sense of uncertainty came upon her. He had knowledge of all the details of her simple life, while she knew hardly the bare outlines of his. She knew his name, and that she loved him; she had hoped that he had loved her. Beyond that there was a blank.

Grief sank deeply into that silent nature and became part of it. It lay down upon her bed at night and rose with her in the sorrowful morning; it moved, spoke, lived with her; and would die when she died.

She turned her imploring eyes upon the sky, the river, her father with a look that seemed to plead "some comfort."

She thought, some day, he would say: "Missy, this place doesn't suit you. We'll go back to the city."

And then perhaps—perhaps—but her father never spoke.

The girl found a daguerreotype of Cavalier's wife thrust beneath some dusty papers in a box. It was too plump and floridly decorated to be her ideal of a mother; but she derived some consolation from it.

"Was she like me?" asked Clelia.

"No. She laughed and talked a great deal," Cavalier replied with reserve.

"That's the reason she died, I suppose," said Clelia, darkly.

"What do you mean, honey?" he said, taking the thin little hand in his.

"It's the unhappy people that live."

Cavalier asked no further questions. That was a sleeping dog that he wished to let die.

That day he tramped mournfully through the woods and brought her a great armful of jasmine and fresh boughs of dogwood full of snowy blossoms.

She said, "How kind you are, father," and "very pretty," and then let them drop in her lap, while her eyes again followed the river as it flowed toward the city.

"Come, Missy," said Cavalier, briskly, "let's go out for a walk. The air'll freshen you up."

"Yes, father," said Clelia, docilely.

She took her hat in her hand, but when she had reached the porch she sank down on the bench and faltered, "I don't know what has come over me. I feel so tired. Just go on without me, won't you, father?—and it will pass away in a minute. You'll be going up through the woods, and by the spring, an't then—I'll follow you."

He went away alone. She watched the bent figure plodding along the road which wound between the green fields and hedges, and said, "Poor father."

Then she re-entered the house.

Her sad heart was still whispering to itself of Mark:

"I can't bear to think he could let me go away, and never wish to say good-bye to me. If he thinks it best that we mustn't see each other any more, I'll try to think so, too. But, dear God, won't you jis t let him come and tell me good-bye? I don't want any thing but that, indeed."

Out of all the happiness in this enormous world, it was all she asked.

There came a knock at the door.

"Come in," said Clelia, and Mark came in.

Widely separated, and by different roads, they had reached the same goal; and it was the most natural thing in the world that they should spring into each other's arms.

He could stay away no longer. He had been followed by a love so strong and inexorable that it cried upon him as he went, and bade him return.

"Oh! where have you stayed so long?" cried Clelia.

"Well, I have come back now," said Mark.

"But—but—maybe you will go away again."

"Never, except with you."

"I thought you must love some one else," she whispered, "and I tried to pray that you might be happy with her, only I couldn't."

"There wasn't any such person," he said, trying to laugh; "why, Clelia, I thought you'd soon forget me."

It was thus that Cavalier found them when he returned to see what had delayed the girl. "Oh, sir! sir!" he cried, "have you come back to break her heart! But listen—she's not my child. Her father was a gentleman, and she's a lady born."

Mark tried to detain him; but he hastened away to get the papers placed in his hands by Col. Legrand. Perhaps the poor fellow's professional instinct told him that this was the proper way to round off a situation.

"I didn't need to know it," said Mark magnanimously, hardly listening to Cavalier's story. "I made up my mind to marry Clelia, if she would have me."

Cavalier's hand lay coldly in the young man's generous grasp; and before the startled Clelia had time to speak to him he was gone. Left to themselves, the lovers soon forgot him—they had so many important things to say to each other.

"Do you love me?"

"You know I do. But do you love me?"

But at last Mark went away and Clelia stole into the inner room to find Cavalier. He was was seated by the fireless hearth, his elbow resting on his knees, and his head between his hands.

"Father," she said, "tell me about it. It's just like a story. What became of my own, my other father?"

"He died."

"And have you just found out that I was not some little stray child you had picked up?"

"No," she said, in a dull voice, "I know it all along."

Clelia started away with such violence that it repulsed him from her.

He turned his head, and looked at her with eyes in which the long misery of his past seemed made alive again. Then, in a moment, her tender arms enfolded him, as she sobbed, "Forgive me, father."

He suffered her caresses with a sense of relief that he did not hate him, and soon she began to smile and to prattle about Mark—how noble he was, how splendid and handsome—until Cavalier patted her on the head and told her it was bedtime.

Clelia and Mark were married in a few days; but in answer to all her entreaties Cavalier replied steadily: "You let me be for a little, Missy, and then I'll come to the city, and you'll see me every day." They had no choice but to leave him.

Silence closed around the little house on the river bank. It seemed to him that everything had passed away. His child was gone. The door of her room stood open, and the emptiness echoed to his footfall. He looked at the little shabby pair of blue shoes she had worn when she first became his, and thought how far her feet had wandered from him now.

Then it happened that a fever came upon him and he sickened from day to day, so that his shaking hand could scarcely write his usual weekly scrawl to Clelia.

The neighbors were very kind and watched with him at night, and ran in from time to time during the day to see how he was. But they had their own duties and he was often left to himself.

He died alone—this restless life that had crawled a little in the dust, and hardly found its wings before death plucked them off.

It was noon. The hot smell of the water floated through the windows, and the shadow of the willow wavered across the threshold; but the well-known notes of shore and river had receded from his sense, and became faint and far-off like sounds heard in a dream.

He tried to raise himself upon his elbow, for it seemed to him that some one stood at the door.

"Come in," he said.

There was a silence.

"I've loved—so much," he muttered.

His failing eyes seemed to demand the meaning of his life.

But on earth there was no answer.

CITY AND PROVINCE

—To-morrow, Dominion Day.

—The missing link has arrived in Victoria. It came from Liverpool.

—See Mrs. Whitlaw's advertisement of new goods received to-day.

—The Geo. W. Elder brought 699 tons of freight, of which 344 were for this city.

—Kempster Bros. have purchased the Strawberry Vale farm of 700 acres for something like $15,000.

—Mr. C. Todd, S.M., occupied a seat on the bench with Mr. E. Johnson, Police Magistrate, to-day.

—The steamer Eliza Anderson will leave for Seattle at twelve o'clock to-night.

—The B. C. G. A. will parade to-morrow, and at noon will fire a salute of twenty-one guns in honor of the day.

—Another "bird" is fluttering its wings preparatory to flying away to a southern clime. But it may become entangled in the snarer's net. Time will tell.

—The prizes for the tombola, on exhibition at Waitt's consist of twenty-one handsome articles, and each one of them is handsome and valuable.

—On investigating the books and accounts of Mr. Pollard, it was found that they had been kept in a perfectly regular and business-like manner.

—At the Lake school examination, the honor rolls were awarded to: Proficiency, Sarah E. Lindsay; punctuality and regularity, Louis Duval; deportment, May Black.

—A telegram from Mr. A. W. Ross, M. P., says that he will leave Ottawa for this city in about three weeks. The long session will probably be brought to an end about the last week in July.

—The consignees by the Olympian to-day are; J B Sehl, Thos Earle, S Leiser, G B Ordano, Young Bros, S Leiser, A Ofner, Hastings Sawmill Co, S T Brewster & Co, H Bornstein, A Lewis & Co, W H Goldson, J A Abrahams.

—During the absence of Rev. Mr. Crosby from Port Simpson, two of his daughters aged sixteen and three years respectively were attacked with diptheria and died. The parents have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends.

—An employee in one of the city cigar factories fell on the floor of the roller skating rink yesterday, fracturing his arm above the elbow. Dr. Milne set and bandaged the injured limb, and the patient to-day is feeling as comfortable as could be expected.

—The occasion of the marriage of Mr. Pearse and Miss Roper, on the 23rd inst., at Kamloops, was an auspicious one. A large number of guests attended the dinner at Prospect Cottage, and a number of valuable presents were made to the bride.

—The Victoria fire department will picnic to-morow, on the grounds in the rear of the Bush Tavern, Esquimalt road. A pavilion has been erected for dancing, a ring for racing prepared, and all the preparations made necessary to secure a perfect success.

—Among the attractions to-morrow will be the excursion on the Amelia to Pedder Bay under the auspices of the Methodist Church and Sabbath school. Probably more solid pleasure can be secured by celebrating the first in this way than in other.

—List of letters detained at Victoria P. O. for postage: Mrs L Davis, Christchurch, N Z; Mrs Fry, Maple Bay; D Irwin, Goldstream; P Sabiston, Nanaimo; Mrs E Matlock, Brooklyn, N Y; E Walsher, St Helena, Cal; W A Waller, New Westminster.

—Mr. E. Lequine, of Okanagan Mission, has returned home from Victoria. He is about erecting an extensive grist mill, which will make the fourth for the district. Okanagan possesses much good land, and the population is rapidly increasing.

—Ladies and gentlemen who have a taste for the beautiful in art, are invited to inspect the large stock of oil paintings on sale by Messrs. Dufour & Co. In the large quantity to select from, many choice specimens can be seen. The prices are reasonable, and no better chance will offer in years to a cure choice paintings.

—Mr. S. G. Fulton has been appointed assistant general freight agent of the N. P. R., at Portland, in the place of Mr. A. D. Edgar, who resigned in consequence of continued ill health, he not having fully recovered from the effects of the stroke of paralysis with which he was attacked some months ago.

—The church of the Holy Trinity, North Saanich, was consecrated on Saturday by the Lord Bishop of Columbia, assisted by Archdeacon Seiven and Revs. Messrs. Beanlands, Malachi, Gregory and Taylor. The building stands on a piece of land presented by Mr. Geo. Mills, and is entirely free from debt.

—Capt. Wright, of the steamer Eliza Anderson, has offered to take to Seattle from Victoria 300 tons of rice now on board the British bark Martha and land it in the bonded warehouse there for less than the same can be handled from that vessel lying at one of the wharves in Seattle.

—Another large addition to the Chinese population to-day. The G. W. Elder brought 110 from San Francisco. Apparently the Mongolians are pouring into British Columbia in advance of the passage of a restriction act. It will soon be time to ask in earnest—"What are the white people going to do about it?"

—A man whose antipathies to our celestial fellow-citizens (?) had become somewhat more demonstrative than the law of Victoria permits, was escorted to the Hutcheson boarding-house between officers Shephard and Grant this afternoon. He was slightly "elevated," and was possessed of an uncontrollable desire to knock the hat off every heathen that he met.

Two Handsome Residences.

The two large ten-roomed residences for Hon. Mr. Robson and Mr. Hunter, on Bird Cage walk and Michigan street, have recently been completed. The principal points are large reception halls in front, with corridors leading through the buildings, giving access to all the rooms from the main hallways. All the principal rooms are elaborately finished in oak, cedar and other hard woods, and oil polished in natural color. The oak mantels and side-boards are of very fine design, carved panels, heads, etc. The inside blinds are of native yellow cedar, and the building contains all the modern conveniences, such as baths, dressing rooms, hot and cold water, gas, electric bells, etc., cornices and centers in all the principal rooms. The contractor was A. J. Smith. Sub-contractor for plastering, Mr. Drake; centers, J. W. Keller, Fort street; plumbing and gas fitting, Mr. Corbett; trimming, Mr. McLellan; mantels and side-boards, Jacob Sehl; and the buildings were erected from special designs by S. C. Burris, architect.

DOMINION DAY.

Will be Celebrated in Victoria in a Usual Way.

The eighteenth anniversary of the confederation of the provinces into the Dominion of Canada will be celebrated in almost every city and hamlet from Victoria to Halifax. Notwitstanding the bickerings of the party press of the east, the reported discontent in the Maritime provinces on the Atlantic, or the flickering rebellion in the Northwest, there is in this Canada of ours a steadily expanding national sentiment that is a certain guarantee of the permanency of our institutions.

OCCASIONALLY CROAKERS ARE HEARD

lamenting the signs of disintegration that their purblind fancies have conjured up, but they are only birds of evil omen whose prophecies are never fulfilled. The sentiment and aspirations of the people are in the right direction, and so long as that is the case the little outbursts of popular discontent here and there—the result of the agitation of demagogues—will not amount to more than a flash in the pan. Victoria is loyal to the Dominion, and although no public celebration will be held to-morrow, the day will be OBSERVED AS A GENERAL HOLIDAY.

A picnic in Saanich, at McMillan's Grove, an excursion under the auspices of the Methodist church, on the Amelia, to Pedder Bay, and the Firemen's picnic near the Bush tavern will offer ample facilities for the observance of the national holiday in a rational and healthful manner. There will besides be many private parties of ladies and gentlemen, and the arm up to and beyond the Gorge, will be the camping ground of not a few of them. All things considered, we believe this is the most sensible way to pass a holiday, and affords more genuine pleasure to the participants than any other.

North Saanich School.

The examination of the above school was conducted by the teacher, Mr. J. W. Thomson and the trustees, and was most satisfactory. In a spelling contest, the first prize was won by Sarah Williams, second by James Foster and third by Nellie MacIlmoyl. The honor roll was: Deportment—Nellie McDonald; punctuality and regularity, Amey Williams; proficiency, Sarah A. Williams. The other chief prize winners and those of special mention were: Fifth class—Writing, Fanny Imrie; music, Mary E Roberts. Fourth class—General proficiency, first, George Baker; second, Esther Roberts; third John Imrie; reading, first Maggie McDonald; second, Stella Brethour; third, George Brethour; advancement, Robert F Mills. Third class—Arithmetic, Alexander McDonald; reading, first, Elizabeth Richardson; second, Charles Armstrong.

Puget Sound Association.

At the last session of the Baptist Association at Centreville, W. T., Mr. Thos. Haughton, of this city, was appointed on a committee to investigate the late troubles in the Baptist church at Tacoma. Mrs. C. Spofford was appointed on the Foreign Mission committee. It was decided that the next meeting of the association be held at Victoria on the Thursday before the last Sunday in June, 1886; introductory sermon, M. C. Jones; alternate, J. P. Ludlow; educational sermon, D. J. Pierce; alternate, J. A. Wirth; missionary sermon, R. S. Greene; alternate, Robert Lennie; circular letter, W. E. M. James; alternate, B. N. L. Davis.

The Colwood School.

The examination of this school was held on Friday. The room was neatly decorated. The examination showed that considerable improvement had taken place since the last one. The teacher, Mr. J. A. McLeod, gave prizes to deserving pupils. Alice Jones was awarded the prize for general proficiency, presented by Mrs. A. H. Peatt. The rolls of honor were presented to: For proficiency, Alice Jones; for punctuality and regularity, J. H. Cessford; for deportment, Albert E. Wale.

Press Associations.

The members of the Manitoba press have formed themselves into an association, under the name of the "Manitoba and Northwest Press Association." Similar organizations are in all the eastern provinces and states as well as on the other side of the line on this coast. The pressmen in this province should follow the example of their brethren of the quill elsewhere. Who will be the first to move in the matter of organization?

Real Estate Sale To-day.

Mr. Robert Lipsett, real estate broker, sold to Mr. N. Balain, for $4000, 21 acres of land, being part of sections 29 and 30, Oakland estate, Victoria District.

EXCELLENT WORKMANSHIP.

What the Vancouver Foundry Can Produce—A Credit to Victoria.

A representative of THE TIMES, in passing the Vancouver Foundry, on Herald street, yesterday morning, observed a

LARGE BRASS SCREW

for a steamboat being put upon a dray for transportation to the machine shop, where it was to be finished. On enquiry, he was told that it was made for the Sir James Douglas by Wilson Bros & Co., from a pattern designed by Mr. Grant, engineer of the Douglas. It was eight feet in diameter and weighed 2100 lbs., and is the largest brass casting ever made in British Columbia. The screw at present in use on the Sir James Douglas, is an iron one, and only a few years in use. The new one is believed to be a great improvement in design and construction, and being made of brass, its life, barring accidents, will be as long as that of the vessel it propels. The workmanship throughout is excellent, and reflects on the firm. In a couple of weeks the steamer will be hauled out of the water and the screw put in position. In the machine shops two brick machines were in process of construction for Kempster Brothers. They are the first machines of the kind made on the coast north of San Francisco. Although somewhat intricate in construction, they are strong and durable. The motive power will be steam, and their capacity will be 25,000 bricks per day. A pair of engines for a new stern wheel steamer, building by Kempster Brothers, are also nearing completion. They are plain, horizontal engines, cylinders of ten-inch bore and three feet stroke, with slide valves on side of cylinders. They are plain, substantial and neat.

THE HIGHEST CREDIT

THE CAPACITY OF THE SHOPS

is fully demonstrated by the rapid production of the machinery referred to, and steamboat men, manufacturers, builders and others will be gratified to learn that all the conveniences of a first-class machine shop, with the practical ability necessary to the production of all kinds of machinery, are to be found at the Vancouver Foundry. The machinery in use is of English manufacture and has all the latest improvements. It comprises two lathes, one planer, one shaper, and a vertical drill. An engine, also built in England, runs the whole. Another consignment of machinery is on its way from England, which will put the firm in a position second to none in the city. Mr. W. L. Collier is foreman of the machine shop, and C. A. Wilson takes personal management of the moulding department. They are both practical men of long experience, and to their supervision over every detail of construction is due the the firm has already attained. A fully equipped pattern and blacksmith's shop is also in connection with the shops. Other improvements will be added from time to time and nothing will be left undone to meet the wants of customers. The firm can be heartily recommended not only for practical but for personal reasons, as they are thoroughly reliable and conscientious in all their undertakings.

REMARKABLE SUCCESS

MARINE NOTES.

The bark Harvest Home sailed from Liverpool for Victoria on the 17th June.

The Eliza Anderson came in from Seattle at 10 this forenoon.

The Geo. W. Elder arrived from San Francisco at 8 a. m., and departed for Sound ports at 2 p. m., to-day.

The Martha will go to Seattle after she has discharged her cargo. She will then proceed to Ludlow and load lumber for Australia.

The American ship Valley Forge, Capt. Love, left Royal Roads this morning under sail for Port Discovery to load lumber.

The bark William H. Besse, Capt. Gibbs, has been chartered to load salmon at Portland for New York. She leaves soon for the former place.

The British bark Hermine, from Liverpool for Victoria, which put into Port Stanley with a mutinous crew, was to leave soon after May 27th. The master, who shot one of the crew, was acquitted.

The pilot boat Mary Taylor spoke the following vessels between Pillar Point and Calam Bay yesterday: Bkte Modoc, for Seattle; ship Mammon, for Seattle; bkte John Woster, ship Enos Soule, ship Shirley, bound up the Sound; steamship Wellington, for Nanaimo; brig and two barkentines name unknown.

The Coloma, which sailed for Portland from Hongkong, before either of the Besse's was longest on the passage, Capt. Noyes says, just because he was in a hurry. He started with the intention of cracking right along, but at the end of fourteen days he found himself only 400 miles from Hongkong, and had easterly winds the whole way, so that the trip was a succession of long tacks, and every mile gained had to be worked for.

South of the Sound.

The young man Leclaire, committed on a charge of beating two Chinamen on the Craigflower road, and out on bail, is believed to be across the Sound. Mr. Green, who left hurriedly the other day because his creditors were becoming unduly harrassing in their demands, is one of his bondsmen, and should he not appear in court when his name is called, his second surety might have to "stand the shot." The relatives of the young man, however, say that he will be on hand when wanted, and they feel convinced that he will be able to establish the fact that the attack on the Chinamen was provoked and hence justifiable.

Painful Accident.

While the Yosemite was loading freight at Port Hammond a Siwash, who was carrying an iron stringer at the time, slipped on the gang plank and fell, the stringer striking him on the forehead and making a terrible gash about six inches in length. The Indian was brought to the city to-day by the steamer and sent to the Royal hospital on its arrival.

The Amelia brought the following passengers: Mrs Venny, Mrs Donaldson, Miss Wilson, Miss Reynard, Miss Brain, Mrs Beaumont, Mrs Phelps, Mrs Ross, Mrs Green, H Fry, J Parker, J Jenkins, E Hughes, Stockham, Burns, Haddon, Saunders, Dingwall, Stratford, Summerhay, Skinner, Wollacott, F Beaumont, Marer, C Beaumont, McDougal, W J Sutton, Sr, McDonald, Sherwood, Richards, Davis, King, Gerow, Sr, Gerow, Jr, Merrifield, Carue, Phelps, Yates and others.

Passengers by the Olympian to-day were: S M McCaw, A Clark, J Bigton, N McCush, A Slessrant, D H Geddes, J S P Weeks, wife and child, Miss Cunningham, J T Silva and wife, W Davidson, J Murphy, J Hunt, Mrs Chambers and child, J G Swan, W F Learned, J J Calhoun, T Kaine, T Houghton, R W Barrs, D M Colbery, F Brooks, J Cunningham, Miss Young, Clyde Clancy, A Wiedersban, Mrs Darrony and child, J Abraham, wife and three children, J C Weeks, A Muir, T Doane, Miss Doane, Miss F Doane, Q Weeks, Mrs Newart, Miss Newart, Mrs Cooper, Mrs Sheffield, Mrs J Ford, Mrs Sumers and child, D Dellerell, M Synnock, J Worth, M Harry, B Lynch, and four Chinese.
